Germany is making more offers of peace—offers she knows very well will be rejected by the Allies, and pharisaical-like puts her hand across her breast, and said offers of peace must now come from the Allies.

Sure, the offers and terms of peace will come from the Allies, both of which will have to be swallowed by Germany.

And a bitter pill it will be, too—but she will be compelled to take the dose, and none knows it better than the kaiser does himself.

Germany's reply to Uncle Sam's last note is about what might have been expected.

In effect Germany said to Uncle Sam, you stop Great Britain in her blockade of Germany, and Germany may stop her warfare in drowning American citizens, and also women and children.

It is an acknowledgment—at least perhaps not intended—that the British blockade of Germany is very effective and that Germany is feeling its pressure—the intention of the blockade is being achieved.

"More Light Needed," is the heading of an article in one of the Calgary papers on the proposed vote for $150,000 for school purposes.

What? More light still needed? After just adopting the daylight saving stunt. Make her two hours instead of one.

This is the month when coming June brides will do their looking before they leap.

Those who want to participate in the daylight saving movement can do so very easily by getting up with the sun, now.

It isn't necessary to set the clock ahead to do it—just set the alarm.

Animal Freedom Cut Off

The Herd By-Law comes into force on Monday, May 15th. The pound-keeper's job then commences.

Some Made Glad and Some Made Sad and Some Made Mad

District Court is being held at Youngstown and Hanna this week presided over by His Honor Judge Winter.

A Sad Memory

Sunday last was the anniversary of the sinking of the passenger ship Louisiana, reference to which was made in the Chinook church, and most of the churches in the dominion.

Beginning Life's Journey

Miss Doris Johnston and Mr. Thomas Sandman were quietly married on Wednesday evening May 3rd. Their friends wish them every happiness and prosperity.

Hello! Here We Are Again!

At a public meeting of the citizens on Tuesday evening, it was decided to hold Chinook's annual sport day on Friday, June 16th. Committees were appointed to make suitable arrangements for the celebration, and, provided we have suitable weather, a pleasant day is assured.

More Law

Messrs. Griffiths, Ford, Wright & Miller, Barristers, Solicitors, Notaries, Conveyancers, etc., of Calgary, have opened a law office in Youngstown. A special office is being built for the new firm, in the meantime the firm have taken quarters in Mr. Snell's office. A member of the firm will be in attendance.

Something in a Name, After All

"Noding" doing in Schöotland school district, Rural Municipality of Sounding Creek, any longer. By the last number of the Alberta Gazette the name of this ill-sounding section of this patriotic province has been changed to Marguerite, which is a much more euphonious name and not calculated to rouse the patriotic indignation of those who hear it.

Tall What Toggles You, Horace

Horace was wearing a broad, good-natured smile recently. We wonder why?

Must Have Been an Oil Strike

The Collholme news boy is on strike this week. Oh, well, strikes are quite the go now.

Beef Eaters Konvention

There is to be a meeting in the school-house on Saturday night, May 13th, for the purpose of organizing a beef ring. Anyone interested far or near should be there.

Homesteads Protected

FOR THOSE SERVING THE KING

In parliament the other day, Hon. Dr. Roche explained the protection given men on military service who have taken homesteads. A man who had taken a homestead prior to enlistment was protected by the government. The same homestead could not be cancelled. In addition, the time he puts in serving the King was counted for homestead duties. As for the man who had enlisted and had then taken a homestead, he was given protection, but his time did not count.

Production and Thrift

CANADA'S CALL FOR SERVICE AT HOME

Produce More and Save More

The Empire needs food. If you are not in the fighting line you may be in the producing line. Labour is limited—all the more reason to do more than ever before. Grow food for the men who are fighting for you. The Allies need all the food that you can produce. Every little helps. You are responsible for your own work. If you cannot produce as much as you would like, produce all you can. Work with the right spirit. Put fighting energy into your effort and produce now when it counts. The more you produce the more you can save. Producing and saving are war-service.

Make Your Labour Efficient

In war-time do not waste time and energy on unimportant and unprofitable work. Economize labour. Put off unproductive work till after the war, and, if possible, help in producing something needed now. Let us not waste labour. Canada needs it all. If possible help to feed the Allies. Make your backyard a productive garden. Cultivate it with a will. Make your labour count for as much as possible.

Do Not Waste Materials

There should be no waste in war-time. Canada could pay the annual interest on her war expenditure out of what we waste on our farms, in our factories, in our homes. Every pound of food saved from waste is as good as a pound of increased production. The way for a nation to save is for every individual to save. France is strong to-day because of thrift in time of peace. The men and women of Great Britain are not only "doing" but are learning to "do without."

Spend Your Money Wisely

Practise economy in the home by eliminating luxuries. Wasting our dollars here weakens our strength at the front. Your savings will help Canada to finance the war. Save your money for the next Dominion War issue. There can be no better investment.

Theater Audiences.

A theater audience is fickle and not infrequently cruel, but it must be won. Augustin Daly had several ways of testing it. One was to station men in his employ at convenient points where they could hear the comments and judge whether the play was making an impression. But a test upon which he depended more was to listen himself at the moment when the curtain went down upon an act. If he saw people turning to one another eagerly and making quick comments he knew that they were being moved, whether for praise or blame. But if the talk began slowly after the curtain fell he was perfectly sure that the play had excited no interest—a worse fate than blame.

It is a favorite way of players to pick out some one person in the audience—one with a sympathetic countenance—and to play to him or her, and to judge by success from the expression seen there. The trouble is that the people in the front rows are often the regulars, who feel little emotion and show less and who may be still unmoved when the rest of the audience is in ecstasy. If they could know the distress and the woe they cause—well, then they would not be the regulars.

app interest will attach to the at Sotheby's, of "Shakespeare's Bible" especially if it appears to admit the genuineness of or both the signatures. There exist only two other signatures of the Bard that are unquestionably his, and to possess the Book of Books, with names written by his own hand, would be a treasure indeed. It is certain that the Bible to be offered is not that from which Shakespeare learned his Scripture knowledge. It was apparently printed in 1613, and bears the imprint of the second edition of King James' Bible, our authorized version, the first issue of which was in 1611. In 1611 Shakespeare's dramatic work was done. It is doubtful if anything proceeded from his pen after that date except, perhaps, "Henry VIII." which is only in part his, "The Tempest" and "Cymbeline." But, apart from this consideration, there is now little if any doubt that the Bible of the poet's youth and manhood was the Geneva version turned into English by the Reformers, first smuggled into this country in 1567, and afterwards freely and widely distributed. It was translated by Coverdale, Whittingham, Gilbey, Goodman, Sampson Cole, and probably John Knox. Being cheap and specially favored by the Puritans, no fewer than 100 editions passed into circulation between 1600 and the Civil war. The Bible which Shakespeare must have known was Coverdale's, the Bishops Wyndley's, Tyndale's, Crommer's, the Rheims New Testament, and the Geneva; but the Rev. Dr. Carter, of Crofton, has proved himself a heretic in Scripture lessons, this in no way invalidates the belief that when the Authorized Version appeared he bought a copy.

LADY URSULA'S HUSBAND

FLORENCE WARDEN

Word, Luck & Co., Limited

There was dead silence in the room for some moments when Lady Ursula had made her decision known to her husband and brother.

Then Paul, who, to do him justice, seemed to be deeply touched by her simple devotion, put up his two hands and held hers in front of him.

Then he turned his face to Lord Eastling. At him he did not look with the same good humor. It was with a return to a frown that he said coldly: "You hear, Lord Eastling? You hear what my wife says. What have you to reply to that?"

In truth, the young man appealed to scarcely knew what to say. He had expected difficulty, but not exactly in this shape. His sister was so serene, so confident, so quiet; she spoke with such an utter absence of the hysteria that she had shown him. After a moment's hesitation, he said:

"I should like to speak to her alone, just her and me."

"It was not grammatical, it was not eloquent, but the speech was good of its kind. It left Paul without any excuse. He shrugged his shoulders.

"Lady Ursula," said he, "will, of course, do as she pleases."

She had withdrawn her hands from his shoulders, and she now looked round at her brother with a faint smile. It seemed that a slight shadow of doubt fell over her. What should Paul mind, considering her own station, her having a short interview with her brother. Yet it was plain that he did mind very much.

There was a very short silence, and then she said:

"If you don't mind, Paul, I think I'd better let him tell me what he has to say. And if he wants to speak without you, it doesn't make any difference, does it? You can trust me to be fair, can't you?"

"Why is it necessary, unless he has some lies to tell about me behind my back, which he doesn't dare repeat to my face, that he should speak to you alone?" demanded Paul, quietly, indeed, but with conviction.

She turned to her brother.

"Tell me, Tom, have you have already said?" she asked.

He took up the challenge energetically.

"Yes," he said. "I have a great deal more to say, more than I can possibly tell you unless we are quite by ourselves."

Lady Ursula was growing nervous, being shaken by the calm voice of her brother. If not of her confidence, Paul Payne suddenly changed from gentle to angry.

"Surely," he said, "this isn't fair. I am a member of your family now, Lord Eastling."

"Perhaps," interrupted the viscount shortly.

"What do you mean by that?"

Paul left Lady Ursula, and with clenched fists held down firmly at his sides, came across the room to the young man.

Lord Eastling, though feeling that he was doing the most desirable thing he had ever been known to do in his life, stood firm.

"From what I have heard of you to-day," he said, in a voice which he had heard used to keep steady, "I can't feel even that you were a bachelor when you went through the ceremony of marriage with my sister this morning."

A cry broke from his sister's lips, but Paul responded so promptly and so effectively to this insinuation that her pitiful protest was drowned in the explosion of his resentment. He made an attempt to lay violent hands upon Lord Eastling, but the young man got behind the table and saved himself.

"Bullying is no answer. Let us hear what you have to say before we appeal to our fists—and before a lady!"

Paul, whose pale face was drawn and tremulous, recovered his composure with a strong effort, and laying his right hand firmly on the table said:

"You have no right to impute such an awful thing to me, slanders which have never heard that."

Lord Eastling hung over his head. There was the accent of truth, he felt, in the voice of the other as he made this protest.

"Come now," repeated Paul, leaning forward, and glaring into the young man's face. "Confess now, openly, honestly, that whatever you have heard, and whoever you may have heard the calumnies from, you have never been told that I was a married man."

Lord Eastling raised his head.

"A little cry, feeble, plaintive, made him turn and look round, in time to see that the other was speaking with an ashy-white face, and a look of joy and relief shining in her blue eyes."

Paul stood up.

"I'm satisfied," he said briefly. "Tell your sister what I feel, since you acknowledge that she was right."

He swung across the room and disappeared into the corridor, leaving Lord Eastling with a look of surprise, supposing that he wanted to overhear what was said about him.

Discouraged and weary, the viscount turned to Lady Ursula. Coming close to her, he bent down, and said:

"I'm awfully sorry for all this, dear. But I couldn't help myself. I've heard enough of the fellow today that I had to come."

She sat up, not angry or resentful, but calm and dignified.

"Who told you?" she said.

"The police."

She shuddered a little, and then recovered herself. There was a long pause.

"Shall I tell him what they said?" he asked.

She shook her head.

"Why should you?" she said. "Since he says it isn't true, it is my husband I must believe."

"But if you have proof?"

"Have you?"

He hesitated. It was true that he had none. He had only the word of a man whom he could trust. That, after all, was quite the same thing—in her eyes, at any rate.

"I know that I've told you the truth."

"Well, supposing what you told me is true? Supposing he did something once which might have brought upon him a heavy punishment? It is not for me to be judge in it, is it?"

"He was not good enough for you."

"But that's what he told me himself. He said he was a married man."

Of course that was absurd, but I took it to mean that he had done things which he was ashamed of, and which I should be right, and since he was so outspoken, so truthful with me, I can't well reproach him with being untrue."

Lord Eastling was silent. The position was a difficult one. Paul had, whether aware of it or not, prepared for this present eventually. Of course, he had not been precise as to his words, but he could not have spoken of his ill-deeds vaguely, leaving an impression upon the simple woman that the mere of his masculine sort, the result of youthful high spirits and carelessness rather than of criminal intent.

"You are infuriated," was all he could say.

"Oh, no, don't say that," she said gently. "Don't, Tom. You wouldn't if you knew how humbly I have prayed for direction in connection with this case of mine, how I have begged for forgiveness if I have cared too much for a human being. Don't call it an intuition. I hope it is not that. But indeed I have been so happy in finding myself cared for by a man so kind and so sweet-natured, that I feel I do deserve the pain for this interview to drive me back to the remembrance that my love is only human after all."

He threw himself on the sofa beside her, touched to the quick by the simplicity of her devotion. He had been reading to have had to try to open her eyes; it was almost a consolation to find that so far he had completely failed.

"Forgive me, Ursula, you will forgive me, won't you?"

But she was sensible enough to know that there was nothing to forgive. Swinging into her brother's face that radiant blue serenity which so seldom lacked in her, she said tenderly:

"I know quite well you have only spoken because you felt you ought. You have been misled, that's all. I have no fault to find with you."

All I wish is that you had been able to speak only to me, so as to keep such horrible things from my ears. But what could I do in the face of such an intuition as this? Lord Eastling felt that he was fooled on every side.

"Hush, Paul!" he said irritably. She did not even mind that. She laughed.

"That's so like you, Tom, to get out of the difficulty you have put yourself in, by persuading me to come to England with me and you at once."

He tried to smile at her, but he was heartily tired, and the attempt was a failure.

"I wish, dear," he whispered, "that you would persuade me to come back to England with me and you at once. If he is the innocent man he says he is, why should he mind our making inquiries about him?"

"He would say, if we were to suggest it, what I say now," replied Lady

Ursula, "that those inquiries, if they were to be made at all, ought to have been made before I became his wife. Now, you see, whatever he might find out would make no difference. Don't you see that, Tom?"

He looked at her shyly.

"There are some things," he began. She cut him short.

"There is nothing," she said solemnly, "which can separate me now from the man I have sworn to love, honor and obey."

Decrease in Live Stock in Canada

Domestic Official Says Hogs in Canada Have Decreased 50 Per Cent. in Two Years

That there has been a 50 per cent. decrease in the number of hogs in Canada during the past two years is the opinion expressed by E. E. Wilson, with headquarters at Ottawa. Mr. Wilson, interviewed in Calgary recently, said that the decrease in the number of hogs in Canada has been a great decrease in both. I venture to say that 50 per cent. is not too great a figure with reference to hogs.

"The reason?" It was because of the poor crops in the western prairie provinces up till last year. But the bottom has been reached and passed, and at the present time hogs are increasing in number.

The high prices and the big crop of 1915, together with an abundance of feed for hogs, have caused the farmer to go back into the business on a larger scale.

The Spirit of a French-Canadian

Extract From a Letter Written in the Trenches by a Soldier From Montreal

The following is an extract from a letter written in the trenches by A. Deslauriers, with the 22nd French Canadian Battalion. Mr. Deslauriers was formerly in the employ of Green-shield Limited, Montreal.

I thank you very much for all the news contained in your letter, and I am sure to glad to hear that the boys in the warehouse are responding so nobly to the call of their country. While I am on the subject, I would like to add a few words which will serve as an answer for those who wish to know why I joined the ranks.

You see, I am a French-Canadian. ## Naming The Farm

The Farm Name Should be Appropriate and Suggestive

You have a large dairy farm putting out high grade dairy butter. Your butter is all that you claim for it. It comes from the Meadow Brook Dairy Farm. The thrifty housewife phones her grocery order to the dealer who handles your butter. If she knows your product she says, "I want a pound of butter, not just butter, but Meadow Brook Dairy Farm butter."

The farm name should be appropriate. It should be suggestive. Sunny Brook Stock Farm should be near a sparkling little brooklet, not on a bald hill slope. Maple Grove Stock Farm should have a maple grove, and Pine Ridge Poultry Farm should be on a pine ridge. The name chosen should be characteristic of the farm for which it is intended. It should be plainly and neatly pointed on a substantial signboard placed at the entrance drive to the farm home. Along with it should go the names of the products or product of which the farm makes a specialty, as "Pine Ridge Berry Farm—A Specialty of Strawberry Plants and Raspberry Bushes," or "P. Jaxon and Sons." This should appear, as well, on all letter-heads and envelopes used in connection with the business correspondence of the farm. In these days of highly developed advertising and specialization the farm without a name is like the link which brings its products before the people economically and properly.

"P. J. K. is Successful Farming."

Disputed Territory

"Oh, mamma, I'll never disobey you again!" said Stale (earnestly).

"Why, Stale, what have you done?"

"Well, I drank my milk at lunch and then I ate a pickle."

"And the milk said to the pickle, 'Here, you get out of here!' and the pickle said, 'I won't,' and now they are having an awful fuss."

The recent criticism in the press of the Anglo-Japanese alliance induced Premier Count Okuma to give an interview in which he condemned what he characterized as petty efforts to create an agitation against Great Britain. The premier declared unequivocally that there would be no wavering in Japan's fidelity to the alliance.

Tragic Folly

It will not be long before the fly season is again with us, accompanied by supplicants from the general press to "swat the fly." Simultaneously, the deadly poisonous paper makes its appearance, with the possible risk of fatal poisoning wherever there are children.

For during 1915 twenty-six cases of fly poisoning were reported from eleven states. In 1914 forty-six children were innocent victims.

This record is in all probability incomplete as symptoms of arsenical poisoning are so similar to those of cholera infantum that even physicians of long experience are likely to confuse them, and the subsequent illness is ascribed to cholera infantum.

The Michigan U.S.A. legislature has already passed a law regulating the sale of poisonous fly papers. The question should be considered by every civic body of Canada and the States to stop infant mortality from an absolutely unnecessary cause.

Movies from Air Help the Trenches

Show the Battlefields in Full Detail and Detect Hun Submarines

The French general staff is making use of the cinematograph as an aid to their campaigns. They have learned to draw excellent conclusions from the aerial photographs above the enemy's position. The films placed together make a very excellent map, showing all the details of the ground.

The operators who undertake a perilous mission of photographing a battlefield have become the most valuable collaborators of the commanders. Their task is difficult, necessitating as it does, great mastery of their art, perfect coolness in danger and wonderful courage. These aerial photographers in fact, run great risks, for frequently when the weather is at all misty, they have to fly low to get good results. Then they are no longer sheltered from the enemy's fire, many of them never return. On board the aeroplanes specially adapted to this service is an apparatus which permits the immediate destruction of all films in case the operator is forced to descend in the enemy's lines.

The aerial military films, says the Paris Cinema, allow the eye to embrace in a few seconds a great extent of territory of which the commander's irregularities clearly appear. The action of artillery is strikingly shown. In one case, it has been seen a column of tanks rising from a ridge that is being bombarded. The centre may reveal a block of houses, showing down the ground. When the habit of seeing a long distance is acquired there may sometimes be noticed developments which would be a collection of little points moving about. These are masses of troops of the enemy. The direction in which they are moving is easily recognized and also what kind of work they are doing whether digging trenches or bringing heavy artillery into position. Sometimes they are seen to fall down flat and apparently to disappear. The enemy has found out that he is being observed and tries to hide.

The films taken above the sea are none the less very interesting. The background is always barred by a regular line, the line of the horizon. Beneath can be seen a miniature fleet of man-of-war, with plumes of black smoke escaping from the ships' funnels. Their wake makes a long white line. The appearance of the water by the vessels' screws can be easily seen. Here and there brownish spots appearing on the water indicate the presence of mines and rocks. About the big ships submarines can be seen manoeuvring, the wake of their periscopes cutting this furrow on the surface of the water.

Then on a screen in a dark hall, the military films have a spectacle most impressively awaited sometimes by the general staff, who check up on the valuable information about the enemy's movements.

Enslaving the Serbians
It has been decided to send 15,000 more Serbians into Germany to work on the land. Seven thousand men, forced by the Germans to leave their families and occupations, have already been deported and are working in Germany.

To all intents and purposes these deported Serbians are slaves. Each man receives a nominal salary of two marks a day, but he has to buy his own food, which swallows up the whole of his pay, so that he is left with nothing but a small sum for his family.

The Serbians are indeed in special camps, and are not allowed to leave. They are punished by death.

HANDY HUSBAND
Knew How to Get Part of the Breakfast

"I know one dish I can prepare for breakfast as well as any cook on earth," said my husband one morning when the cook was ill and he had volunteered to help get breakfast. It appeared with his dish and I discovered it was Grape-Nuts which, of course, was easy to prepare for it was perfectly cooked at the factory, but it was a good illustration of the convenience of having Grape-Nuts about.

"We took our Grape-Nuts immediately after returning from a five years' sojourn in a hot country. Our stomachs were in bad condition, and we were in poor local generally."

"In a day or two we liked Grape-Nuts better than any other kind of food on the table. We both gained steadily in health and strength, and this was caused by Grape-Nuts."

"A friend of ours had a similar experience. She was seriously ill with indigestion, and could not eat. Nothing that would not give her heartburn and palpitation, especially at night."

"She found that a small dish of Grape-Nuts with cream made her a satisfactory supper and gave her a comfortable night's rest. In a short time she gained several pounds in weight."

Manitoba Game Protection Laws

For the Protection of the Prairie Chickens and Quail Birds and Insectivorous Birds

It is unlawful and strictly against the provisions of the Manitoba Game Protection Act to use poison, poisonous grain or other poisonous substances for the killing of game birds or other insectivorous birds. See section 23 of the act quoted here with:

"No person shall use poison, poisonous grain, or other poisonous substances, for the killing of game birds or other insectivorous birds, or for the killing of game birds or other insectivorous birds, or for the killing of game birds or other insectivorous birds."

Can Do My Work Pain is All Gone

MISS DOLLIE McCLAIN TELLS OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Alberta Lady Tells of Quick and Complete Cure Through Using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ferguson Falls, Alberta.—(Special).—"Yes, I am very glad I can say that I have tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and found them all that is claimed for them."

"I was troubled with a sore back that made me almost helpless. I took one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and my back is all right. I can do my work and the pain is all gone."

Thousands of women in Canada are suffering daily tortures from pain in the back. Thousands of others like Miss McClain are doing their work without an effort because they took the advice of others and cured their backache by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Every woman should use Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are the finest tonic in the world because, acting directly on the kidneys, they tone up those organs to do their full work of straining all the impurities out of the blood. Pure blood means new strength for all parts of the body. New strength means new cheerfulness. That is why so many women so cheerfully testify to the benefit received from using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

What Did They Mean?
"How was your speech received last night?" asked one commiserator of another.

"Well," was the reply, "when I sat down they all said that it was the best thing I ever did."

KEEP CHILDREN WELL

To keep little ones well, the bowels must be kept regular and the system sweet. Nine-tenths of childhood ailments are caused by derangements of these organs. Baby's Own Tablets never fail to regulate the stomach and bowels—that is why thousands of mothers would give no other medicine to their little ones. Concerning them Mrs. Chas. A. Turner, Marie Joseph, N.S., writes: "We have been using Baby's Own Tablets of and on for the past year and a half and have found nothing to equal them. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont."

"This is a hard word," said one laborer to another.
"Yes, O! do be thinkin' at that livery time O! put me pickaxe into it."

"I understood the text, all right," remarked Aunt Ann Peabody, after the sermon was over; "but the preacher's explanation of it puzzled me a good deal."

THE BEST GAME

There's a joy in playing cricket on a sunny summer's day. But you must desert the wicket and put bats and pads away. When the stormy autumn weather of the leaves has taken toll. And you punt the bounding leather round the grinning grapple goal. But there's just one game that gives points to all the rest. Other games go out of season. Scouting never does. That's one reason Why we love our Scouting better and it's easily the best.

Other games may make you clever in some special sort of way. But no other game can teach a boy everything, but get no permanent relief until I tried Zam-Buk. This balm relieved the pain; continued use completely and permanently cured me. The rich herbal essences of which Zam-Buk is composed, quickly remove congestion, relieve the dull, gnawing, burning pain, and cure. So we'll give three cheers for Scouting, for we've tested well its We have proved beyond all doubting, it's the finest game of earth. All who wear our badge are brothers, serving in a laudable hand. Playing straight and helping others, true to Flag and Motherland. So we'll spread it o'er the Empire, East and West.

And while we're schoolboys still, and when all we boys have grown to men, We'll still play, and play still better, our own game that's still the best.

—By Captain F. Livingston-James, East Lancashire Regiment, Scoutmaster for 2nd Fulwood and 6th Blackburn Troops.

What Else Matters?
We are fighting against a nation which by countless deeds of horror have proved themselves outlaws from humanity, who have trampled upon international law and the rights of the weak, who are striving to destroy all the higher ideals of Christian civilization and of human liberty, and to substitute for them the brutalizing and materialize principles of so-called German "Kultur."

What does anything else matter compared with our winning the victory against such an enemy, and should not the purpose to achieve it be the dominating interest of our present lives, shaping all our thoughts, and determining all our actions?—The Times of India.

Hotel Manager—Would you like some of the hotel to send to your friends?
Guest—No, it would be better for me to keep my views to myself.

There is no more carrot in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, permitted the disease to grow.

Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Halls' Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional Cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case not cured. Spring Feeding Fortunate are the feeders of dairy cattle who have wisely provided an ample amount of palatable feed for the early spring months. At this time the appetite of the dairy cow begins to lag and feeds which were eaten with a relish in the fall and winter have but little attraction now. It is always a good plan to feed the poorer class of feed while the appetite is good and to save the brightest clover or alfalfa and the soundest corn for those trying months just before grass. Ordinarily it will pay where good palatable feed is not on hand to purchase such stuff as is needed to maintain the milk flow until the cows can be turned out to grass. Larger returns from the pasturage will result.

Chinook Breezes

The weather man is right onto his job these days.

Mrs. Strong of Craigmyle has been the guest of Mrs. Isbister the past week.

Mothers' Day will be suitably observed at the Chinook Sunday school, next Sunday morning, at 11 o'clock. Everybody welcome.

T. Connah, of the 196th Batt.
of the University of Alberta, Edmonton, has been home for two or three weeks.

Bills are out for an auction sale of household furniture, at the residence of Mr. Leadbetter, 2nd Avenue West, Chinook, Saturday
May 20th, at 2 p.m. sharp.

All Helps Some

The rain and snow storm early Sunday morning will greatly help the newly sown grain and help to keep the moisture in the ground.

For Mother

Mothers' Day will be appropriately observed in the Chinook church on Sunday evening, May 14th. Special sermon and music suitable for the occasion.

Our Mistake and Your Treat

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Allen published in last week's issue, should have been to John W. Knowles, instead of Hawkes as announced.

A Handsome Showing

Youngstown collected the handsome sum of $3600.00 last week for the Patriotic Fund. What has Chinook done? As far we know —practically nothing. We are a pretty measly bunch if we don't soon get a move on.

Election of Officers

At the annual meeting of the ladies' aid, held at the parsonage on Wednesday afternoon, the following officers were elected:
Mrs. A. Nicholson, president;
Mrs. J. R. Miller, 1st vice pres.;
Mrs. A. George, 2nd vice pres.;
Mrs. Isbister, secretary; and Mrs.
Dell, treasurer.

Gets a "Send-Off"

A hearty "send-off" banquet was given to Lorne Bethune on Tuesday evening, by his many friends and well-wishers, at the invitation of Mr. H. C. Brigg-shaw, in whose employ Lorne has been for five years. After the banquet many kind and flattering things were said by those present and best wishes for his future career, and a safe return home.
Lorne left on Wednesday morning to join his regiment, the 175th
O.S. Batt., Medicine Hat.

DENTISTRY

DR. PIPER will be in Chinook in May, from the 16th to the 19th, inclusive.

WHY LETTERS ARE "CENSORED"

Five hundred dollars fine or an option of six months in jail was jolt handed out to J. Julike, a Burdette farmer, who was convicted at Lethbridge on a charge of trading with the enemy. The evidence showed that letters from Julike to a German paper in the United States were intercepted, and contained money to be used for the prosecution of the war.

All married Englishmen, eligible for military service, who are living abroad, but who ordinarily are residents of England, must return to England at once and report for military duty. This announcement was made in the British house of commons this week.

Now if Turkey is half-way decent to those British prisoners at Kut, it may go easier with her when the Russians finish their job.
